Denton Corker Marshall is one of the world's most influential and iconic architecture firms. This film invites us into the extraordinary minds of the three intriguing and very different partners who have been friends since university. Their unique personalities and distinctive skills coalesced into a unique working relationship creating innovative, memorable architecture and urban design in Australia and internationally. We look at the history of their most renowned commercial and residential works such as the Stonehenge Visitors Centre, Manchester Civil Justice Centre, Melbourne Museum, Australian Embassy in Beijing, and follow the creation of the Australian pavilion at the Venice Biennale.

Directed by Paul Goldman, 2015, Australia, 58 Minutes
